

The University of Iowa Carver College of Medicine

Lewis D. Holloway Award for Research in Health Sciences Education

The intent of this award is to recognize faculty for achievement in research and innovation conducted under the auspices of the Carver College of Medicine Educational Development Fund. To be eligible for this award, an individual must have received an Educational Development Fund (EDF) grant within the past five years of the current year, must be a member of the faculty in the Carver College of Medicine, and must have submitted the required report at the end of the grant period. The award includes a plaque and a $1,000 travel award to attend a professional meeting. The monetary award is divided among faculty co-investigators when multiple faculty are listed as such on the EDF proposal.

The Advisory Committee to the Office of Consultation and Research in Medical Education (OCRME) reviews applications for this award. Faculty who are eligible for the award are notified annually and invited to apply for the award.

The application should include the following:

- Title of project;
- Name of principal investigator;
- Goals and objectives of your project;
- Brief summary of what you did for your project;
- Description of the outcomes of your project, such as what you produced or implemented and the results;
- Description of the impact of your project. The Committee is particularly interested in the evaluation or research results of your project. Include other evidence of impact as applicable, e.g., a list of presentations or publications resulting from your project; a description of additional funding that resulted from this project or was received in conjunction with this project; awards received because of this project, or other information about the impact of your project on educational programs in the College and/or the larger academic community;
- (Optional) 1-2 letters of support from those who can attest to the impact of your project.
