

Getting to the hospital on football game days

Home Hawkeye football games are played at Kinnick Stadium, across Hawkins Drive from UI Hospitals & Clinics. About 70,000 people attend, so traffic gets heavy.

Best option: Most patients and all hospital visitors should follow Hawkins Drive from the north/Coralville. This will get you to Parking Ramps 1 and 2 and to the Main Entrance.

Emergency patients: Follow Grand Ave. from the east and take a right at the roundabout.

Labor and Delivery patients: The best entry is the John Pappajohn Pavilion South Entrance. Follow Grand Ave. from the east and take a left at the roundabout, then an immediate right onto For The Kids Way. Labor and Delivery patients may be dropped off at this entrance, and the security guard can tell the driver where the best parking is.

Restricted roads

- Hawkins Drive along Kinnick Stadium and For The Kids Way will be closed to non-emergency traffic from about 2.5 hours before kickoff until 2 hours after the game ends.
- Melrose Ave. will be closed to non-emergency traffic 1 hour before kickoff and open shortly after the game ends.
- Emergency vehicles (both ambulances and individual cars) will be let through the security checkpoints to get to the hospital. Let them know you are having an emergency or need to get to the hospital.

Parking

Non-emergency traffic should park in Parking Ramps 1 or 2. These are for patients and hospital visitors only (no football fans).

More tips

- Avoid Melrose Ave. especially during the hours before the game.
- If possible, come to the hospital after the game starts.
- After the game, traffic on Hawkins Drive and Dubuque Street is northbound only, and Melrose Ave. is westbound only. Avoid coming in on those roads within an hour after the game.
- Visitors should enter the hospital through the Main Entrance, as all other entrances will be locked for safety. However, entrances to the Emergency Department and Labor and Delivery (Pappajohn Pavilion South Entrance) will be staffed by security who will allow you to enter if needed.
- Find the football schedule at hawkeyesports.com.
